

CU suspends classes, exams for today amid rain, waterlogging

3 HOUR(S) AGO UPDATED 3 HOUR(S) AGO CAMPUS

SHARE

CU Correspondent

Chittagong University campus. File photo

Chittagong University has suspended all classes and examinations scheduled for today due to adverse weather, waterlogging, and transport disruptions.

The decision was announced in a notice signed by Registrar Prof Dr Mohammad Saiful Islam around 7:30am.

Tap Here to Add The Daily Star As A Trusted Source

According to the notice, all academic activities and examinations scheduled for the day have been postponed in view of the inclement weather, widespread waterlogging, and disruptions to transportation.

Continuous heavy rainfall over the past three days has caused severe waterlogging in different parts of Chattogram, disrupting transport and causing hardship for students, teachers, and university staff commuting to and from the campus.

Considering the overall situation, the university authorities took the decision for today, the notice said.